

January 13, 2009

To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is my personal recommendation for Bryce Lien. I have been in a supervisory position to Bryce, in my role as General Manager and Director of Development, since he started with WFC in October of 2005. I find him to be outgoing and a pleasure to work with, taking on all assignments with dedication and integrity.

He has successfully completed a number of design projects in his role as Job Captain and then as Project Manager. During his employment at WFC, he has played a creative role in many of the changes in our company as we've grown. He was the Job Captain for our new corporate office building, working directly with the Architect to develop the presentation and working drawings. He has also helped to create many of the forms and templates in production today.

Bryce is an assertive person who is able to present creative ideas and communicate them in many ways. As Director of Development, I have worked closely with Bryce on feasibility studies, proposals, and other development tasks in which I know he has learned a great deal. He has always been eager to take on tasks in other areas of the company to broaden his skill set. In addition to his role as Project Manager and CAD Manager, he also helps with the in house IT responsibilities for our company.

In order for Bryce to continue on his journey toward becoming an Architect, he needs to be working directly with Architects. Although I appreciate all of the hard work he has performed at WFC, I also admire the dedication to his craft. I highly recommend Bryce for employment. He is a team player and will make a great asset to any organization.

Sincerely,

Eddie Martinez
Director of Development